THE COVER

Benjamin F. Biaggini, Law Day honoree, stands with Father Louis Blume, President of St. Mary's University and Dean of the School of Law, Earnest Raba.

St. Mary's presents Degree of High Distinction to 1936 Alumnus . . .

Benjamin F. Biaggini: Doctor Of Laws, Honoris Causa

On Thursday, May 6, 1965, at the Ninth Annual Law Day, it was with great pride that St. Mary's University of San Antonio, Texas, gave an earned recognition to the accomplishments and the industrial leadership of a distinguished alumnus, Mr. Benjamin F. Biaggini.

Mr. Biaggini was born in New Orleans, Louisiana. The son of the late Benjamin F. Biaggini, Sr., and Maggie Switzer Biaggini, he spent most of his youth in San Antonio, Texas. His father was an official of the Pullman Company, and at the time of his retirement, he was the manager of its operations in the Republic of Mexico.

Mr. Biaggini graduated from Main Avenue High School in San Antonio in 1931. His student days at St. Mary's University of San Antonio, Texas, which began September 13, 1932, forcefully foretold that this young man was born to lead. He was a Vice President of the Rattler Club, Captain of A Company in the military unit, and President of the Student Council. He graduated in 1936 with a Bachelor of Science degree, Magna Cum Laude. His major was Mathematics. Shortly after graduation, he married Miss Anne Payton at San Antonio, Texas; of this union were born Constance Sue, now Mrs. James Spencer Malott, and Marian Anne.

On July 13, 1936, Mr. Biaggini began his apprenticeship as a rodman in the engineering department of the Southern Pacific Lines at Ennis, Texas. Various executive positions gradually were entrusted to him, until in 1955, he became the Vice President of Southern Pacific Lines of Texas and Louisiana. His advancements then followed in rapid sequence: to Vice President, Southern Pacific Company, San Francisco, in 1956; to Executive Vice President and Director, Southern Pacific Company, in 1963; and finally to President and Director of Southern Pacific Company, on December 1, 1964.

The company which he heads from his San Francisco office commands a vast rail enterprise from the Gulf of Mexico in the east to the blue Pacific in the west, with the sun rising and setting on 21,609 miles of steel rail; together with Southern Pacific Company subsidiaries in 26,022 miles of motor freight routes, 1,871 miles of pipe line, warehousing, Bankers Leasing Corporation, approximately four million acres of non-transportation lands, and mineral interests in excess of a million acres. This is the history of one man's achievement in thirty years from rodman to President of one of the largest and most successful corporations in the United States.

The Southern Pacific Railway Company began as the Galveston, Harrisburg, and San Antonio Railway Company. When the line was completed from Houston to San Antonio on February 5, 1877, it became the first railroad to reach San Antonio. For several days there was much fanfare, rejoicing, ceremony, parades, brass bands, pennants and flags flying in the air, and much speech making by great dignitaries and executives. San Antonio's population of 20,000 vibrated with excitement. At long last the frontiers of the Southwest would open. Historians tell us that the famed and venerable Menger Hotel was gaily decorated in the spirit of a San Antonio fiesta. The San Antonio Express said, "The scene was one of dazzling splendor and one that is seldom witnessed by any people."

Governor R. B. Hubbard of Texas had this to say: "We should become a power to command respect in the councils of nations. We are all living in the greatest period in the world's history and our capacity to improve is greater than ever. The railroad is of great influence in encouraging development, and we can rejoice in the near approach of the day when Texas shall have two million people and when it will rank with New York and Pennsylvania as one of the greatest and most populous states of the Union." Five years later, on January 12th, Southern Pacific became transcontinental when the rails from the East and the West met in Texas near the confluence of the Pecos and Rio Grande Rivers.

Our interest in government and civic affairs must be constant. Mr. Biaggini stressed this fact in his Commencement address to the 1958 graduating class of St. Mary's University. On that occasion he said, "Do not hesitate to interest yourself in local politics and government at all levels. The conduct of your government affairs is a very serious business. If you do not raise your voice in these matters you will find that there are others who would take all voice away from you. In the field of social and charitable work there are many opportunities to work at different levels of activity and responsibility. All of these activities offer opportunities for community services and you are now part of an intellectual fraternity whose skills and judgments are needed. So I urge you to serve when you can. The net result will be a finer community in which to live and for you the satisfaction of services and participation in a job well done."

Mr. Biaggini lives by this rule. He has given of himself to civic affairs, beyond the daily toils of a busy railroad executive. He is a director of Junior Achievement of San Francisco, Inc., and a director and member of the executive committee of United Bay Area Crusade and its former campaign chairman; he has also been very active in the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce.

In recognition of his executive ability in the management of the great Southern Pacific Company enterprises, his activities in civic affairs throughout the years, his initiative, his attributes as an outstanding citizen, and the honor which he has brought upon this University and its teachers, Dean Ernest A. Raba had the privilege and honor to recommend for the degree of Doctor of Laws, Honoris Causa, Mr. Benjamin F. Biaggini.

ALSA Circuit Report

By Marion Carson

Since this is the last edition until our next school year I want to take this time to explain individual membership in the American Law Student Association for the benefit of the new law students.

Individual Membership in the American Law Student Association is a key to the doors of the legal profession. By joining the American Law Student Association as an individual member the law student takes a significant step forward in anticipation of the day when he will enter the practice of law in one of its many facets.

In the past year the American Law Student Association's Individual Membership was used by more than two thousand students in law schools the country over to unlock the mysteries of career opportunities and job placement in the crowded and diverse legal profession. Members were able to discover some of the answers to important problems afflicting recent graduates in the early years of practice. For many new law students, individual membership publications provided a solution to the mystery of better performance on law school examinations. Still others found that individual membership presaged a greater awareness of the benefits to be derived from more active participation in local Student Bar Association programming. Through individual membership law students kept well abreast of the most recent developments within the American Law Student Association, legal education and the law profession. The inevitable result was a growing understanding of the objectives and responsibilities which necessarily face a practicing member of the legal profession and firm commitment by individual members to enter the legal profession in the near future, adequately prepared and qualified to serve the public. Today, the American Law Student Association Individual Membership Program is a living demonstration that law students, be they freshmen or seniors, are no longer barred from active enjoyment of the benefits of organized bar work. Their step forward is a step forward for the entire legal profession.

A numerical increase of individual members of the American Law Student Association in our school can only result in one thing—an increased interest in our Barristers with more participation in organized bar work and its role in the legal profession.
