Chain of Custody: Dorothy H. Steinbomer was a librarian at St. Mary's University where her specialties were Fine Arts, Music and Audio Visual materials. She collaborated with Carmen Perry to produce a book about the artist Theodore Gentilz published by the University of Texas Press in 1970. In the fall of 1971, Mrs. Steinbomer loaned photos of Mexico used for an exhibit by the Special Collections. From 1970 to 1972, she served as chair for the newly organized department of Urban Studies while also serving as a librarian. Her academic specialty was Pre-Columbian Art (see library correspondence January 25, 1972). The architectural drawings of her deceased husband Henry Steinbomer were received at St. Mary's on May 10, 1972. She resigned from St. Mary's in September 1972.

Biographical Note: Steinbomer (1902-1964) was considered the most prolific church architect in Texas during the 1940s and 1950s: Born in San Antonio; graduated from the University of Texas (1923); worked with Ralph Cameron, Atlee B. Ayres, Ellis F. Albaugh, Jack L. Duffin; charter member of the Texas Society of Architects; worked in the Civilian Conservation Corps marker program and on the Historic American Buildings Survey; active in the area of historic preservation (University of Texas Libraries).
