President's Annual Report

Honor Roll of Donors

Memories of Father Blasen

Former ambassador to Belize Eugene L. Scassa, seated left, is a St. Mary's visiting professor in international relations this year. He is one of five ambassadors-in-residence assigned to American universities by the U.S. State Department.

Here he discusses an ambassador's responsibilities with some of the St. Mary's president's ambassadors. They are a select group of students whose academic excellence, demonstrated leadership and attitude of service qualify them to assist as hosts and hostesses for the president and his guests at official university functions.

ABOUT THIS ISSUE

Our President's Annual Report in this issue gives alums the chance to review their alma mater's progress over the academic year that ended May 31, 1994.

This year, Father Moder notes that university faculty and administrators have been busy preparing for accreditation and reaccreditation, so important in maintaining the university's place in education. As he says, the year's activity doesn't sound too dramatic. Yet this detailed, painstaking work is vital to St. Mary's standing in the academic world.

Because of the President's Report, our annual Honor Roll acknowledging gifts to the university through the year and an extra fat Class Notes section (thanks to your excellent response to our new tear-out for returns--please keep them coming), there's not much space in this issue for features.

But those we offer include two thoughtful essays by an English department faculty member and the chairman of the political science department. Incidentally, and with no bearing on the subjects they chose, they happen to be husband and wife.

Those who knew the late Rev. Carl Blasen, S.M., will appreciate the fond memories of him expressed by a former student on page 4 and a Marianist brother on the back cover. Their articles were inspired by a memorial scholarship funded in Father Blasen's honor by a grateful former student--a donor who wishes to remain anonymous. Blessings to all for the holiday season. — Sylvia McLaren, editor

Editor's Appeal

We hope very much to make this page of letters a regular part of Gold & Blue.

But continuing the page depends entirely on you, our readers.

After the summer issue, some readers phoned in critical and appreciative comments. Asked to please put their views in writing for this page, they agreed. But time got in the way, and they did not manage to follow through.

Time-saving suggestions that might help: Try using the handy tear-out mail-ins on page 23. That's how one of the letters on this page came in. We think his classmates will enjoy the reader's brief reminiscences.

Also, don't forget our fax service: (210) 436-3711.

However you respond, please take a few minutes to send us your comments: what you like, don't like, and would like to see in Gold & Blue.

Look forward to hearing from you. And thanks for listening.

Campus Ministry First

The spring '94 issue of Gold & Blue was a refreshing in-depth look at some of the talent residing at St. Mary's University. The article by Dr. Akhahenda was a sad but true commentary on the disproportionate popularity of the athlete in America, especially timely in light of the O.J. Simpson trial.

The article on Father Doersching was entertaining as well. The insight into the Campus Ministry was enjoyable. My sister Maura and I were the first two, I believe, to be awarded Campus Ministry scholarships in 1975. It made it possible for me to continue at St. Mary's. Father John A. Leies was a saint in shining armor in our eyes.

And Candy Kuebker remains a most stable stone in the fabric of St. Mary's. She continues to impress many of the alumni in her drive and talent.

The layout made for easy reading. I was impressed with the overall publication, and I look forward to my next issue.

Keep up the outstanding work.

Gratefully,

Hopes to "Solo Down" to Campus

I enjoy reading about the activities going on at St. Mary's; looking for old classmates, especially those in ROTC and the Marian Guard.

I've started flying lessons-- hopefully I'll be able to "solo down" there and get a grand tour. Last seen picture leads me to believe that very little has actually changed. The gym and ROTC classes are still where they were; Reinbolt, Garni and Chaminade haven't moved. The tennis courts where Brother Ed Rohrbach slaughtered me in PE have been resurfaced (not that it would make any difference). The classroom where Dr. Fernando Rivas lectured, and "lectured" me in Spanish I couldn't understand, is still there. Thanks for putting up with me. Too many instructors for me to mention here.

Sincerely,
Joseph J. Gallagher (B.A. '71)

AN ASSASSINATION'S LEGACY

by Henry Flores (B.A.'74), Ph.D., Chairman, Political Science Department

When John F. Kennedy was assassinated 31 years ago, the nation experienced a collective state of depression and loss.

Regardless of what the pundits and politicians of the day thought about Kennedy's leadership on any particular issue, the general public saw him and his seemingly idyllic family as a symbol of hope for the future of the United States. When his life was shattered so suddenly, it was as if this hope was shattered as well.

As if the loss of a beloved president weren't enough, the nation was dealt another blow with the realization that Lyndon Johnson was replacing him. After all, Johnson represented not only the state where Kennedy was gunned down, but also the resurgence of a South which had for decades fought to block progressive social legislation. The South of Lyndon Johnson had long shown its face as an amiable good ol' boy philosophy, concealing segregation, racial hatred, lynchings, racially motivated murders and nativism. John Kennedy was dead, and the ascension of Lyndon Johnson to the presidency pushed the country deeper into despair.

From our vantage point three decades later, it is clear that Johnson surprised many of his early critics. To this day, historians are at a loss to explain the motivation behind his sudden switch from being a good ol' boy to a caring, socially progressive leader. The progress he introduced was astounding. Four months after the assassination, Johnson invoked the Kennedy legacy by presenting his vision of a "Great Society" (at the University of Michigan). In quick order, Johnson gave the nation the sweeping Civil Rights Act of 1964, and in the same year, the Office of Economic Opportunity. The latter went on to spawn the Community Action Program (CAP), Volunteers in Service to America (VISTA), Medicare and the Voting Rights Act of 1965.

What allowed President Johnson to engineer such an energetic agenda was the profound state of shock in which the nation found itself after Kennedy's assassination. The reactionary southern forces in the U.S. Senate could not muster the necessary votes to defeat Johnson's legislative assaults because of the overwhelming national sentiment that the "Kennedy Legacy" be fulfilled.

Some analysts contend that if Johnson's tenure were measured solely on his domestic agenda performance, he would rank as one of the nation's greatest presidents. His place in history, however, was irrevocably tarnished by his inability to navigate the treacherous waters between the promise of his social initiatives and the ultimate destruction awaiting him in Vietnam.

Though the landmark social legislation brought many reforms to the United States, what was -- and still is -- important, is that these laws put race and racism forever on the front burner of our domestic policy agenda. Since those laws were passed and enacted, evidence of the necessity of such laws keeps rearing its head across the nation. We need only look at the life sentences imposed in 1993 on two white men in Florida. Their heinous crime was setting on fire a black brokerage clerk from New York. We must continue the fight for the equal representation of African Americans and Hispanics at all levels of government -- from school districts to Washington, D.C. We still must fight against racially biased employment and promotion discrimination in the private and public sectors.

As the 1960s pass further into history, what will be remembered as the "Kennedy Legacy" is the institutionalization of Lyndon Johnson's civil rights efforts. Without the passage of the revolutionary Civil and Voting Rights Acts, racism could not be fought today on the floors of Congress or in our courts and classrooms.

But it is sad to consider that had it not been for the 1963 assassination of one of our most promising presidents, we would in all likelihood not have the laws with which to fight against the debilitations of racism in America. ■

Carl M. Blasen, S.M.

Priest, Philosopher, Friend Extraordinaire

by Melba D. Fisher (B.A. '85) Administrative Assistant to President Moder

A former student and friend of the late Father Blasen recently honored his memory by establishing the Rev. Carl M. Blasen, S.M., Memorial Scholarship Fund on the first anniversary of his death.

Knowledge of the gift triggered my musings about the man I affectionately called "Father B."-- my priest-philosopher friend. He would surely smile and be pleased that his lifetime devotion to education is now honored by a scholarship that will help students continue their education at St. Mary's.

Father B. was my introduction to the world of philosophy. As a full-time St. Mary's employee I took advantage of the opportunity to attend classes in the evening. My undergraduate degree program required 12 hours of philosophy. I fulfilled that requirement with two semesters of philosophy and one semester of logic with Father B. and a semester of ethics under Brother John Totten.

I soon discovered that Father B. loved philosophy and loved helping students understand its concepts and application of principles that might help make a better world for humanity. He showed great patience in answering students' questions and in trying different tactics to explain difficult concepts.

A man of passion, simplicity and humility, Father Blasen has been described by a fellow Marianist as "the ever-genial priest who was everybody's friend." These qualities served him well during his long career as educator, priest, administrator and counselor. He mostly influenced others by his passionate belief in humble, caring service. His fellow Marianists tell many stories about his goodness in community life, and his former students and friends remember the ease with which they could talk to him.

Something I will always remember about Father B. was his infectious laughter. His whole face would crinkle with the joy of the moment's humor. His blue eyes would twinkle, and somehow, sharing his laughter, I would feel for the moment that despite all our cares and concerns, all's right with the world.

Father B. was not a man with any particular hobbies, but he loved good conversation and stimulating exchanges of ideas. I remember him pausing many times in the midst of conversation, and after reflecting a moment, wisely suggesting a fresh approach or an alternative way of thinking about the issue at hand. I think perhaps his uncommon wisdom stemmed from his Midwestern roots and upbringing and instilled in him a philosophical approach to life's uncertainties.

Many of us will never forget where we were when we heard of President Kennedy's death. On Nov. 22, 1963, I was working in the comptroller's office during the lunch break. I will always remember Father B. bringing me the shocking news, and the comfort of having him stay with me until the rest of the office staff returned.

Father Blasén's priestly concern for his fellow Marianists and for the people he faithfully served in neighboring parishes is legendary. I recall the many times he shared with me how much it meant to him to serve as a priest charged with the mission of bringing God's goodness to others.

When my husband and I had determined our wedding date, we went to Father. B. for our marriage instructions. Over bottles of Seven-Up he talked to us about the richness of grace that would be our lifetime gift from the sacrament of marriage. We remember his gentle insistence that compassion, an understanding heart, forgiveness and a shared sense of humor should always be part of our commitment to each other.

Not many people know of the physical suffering that tormented Father Blasén for many years. He only talked about it when someone asked how he was feeling. His eyes sometimes reflected his pain, but that smile would still spread across his face, reflecting his gratitude to those expressing their concern.

The moment of Father Blasén's death on May 18, 1993, was, I think, a gift from the God whom he so loved. He died clothed in his priestly vestments, preparing to begin the celebration of liturgy for his Marianist community. He was doing what he felt most called to do--serving as a priest.

The Rev. Charles Neumann's homily at Father Blasén's funeral Mass described how "the community was singing the opening song of the liturgy and, with eyes fixed on text and melody, did not immediately take note of what was happening in the sanctuary. By the end of the first verse Father had probably expired without suffering any agony, with only a couple of deep gasps for breath, and then a final tremor. He never opened his eyes. They were already looking out onto another world...."

Could I have looked into Father Blasén's eyes at that moment, I think I would have seen that familiar twinkle and have been embraced into the joy that crinkled his face as he entered that world which he knew was promised to him.

Known affectionately to many as Father Carl or Mike, and to me as Father B., he was priest, philosopher and friend extraordinaire, and it is an honor to share some personal remembrances of this fine man who contributed so much to Marianist education at St. Mary's. ■

Melba Uvietta Fisher has been associated with the St. Mary's Marianist's and mission most of her life. She first joined St. Mary's staff in 1958 and, after an interruption, returned in 1963. She has worked in the Academic Library, the business office, student services, and since 1978, as assistant to St. Mary's presidents. In 1983 she received the university's Marianist Heritage Award. Her brother, the Rev. Joseph Uvietta, S.M., is the university chancellor.

A NATION OF POETS & CANNIBALS

Argentine Women View the “Dirty Wars” 10 Years Later

by Gwendolyn Diaz, Ph.D., Associate Professor of English

In the summer of 1993 I returned to my native city, Buenos Aires, on a research trip. I took my customary first-day walk through the streets of this cosmopolitan metropolis to get a sense of the state of affairs.

As I approached the intersection of Florida and Lavalle, the cultural heart of the commercial district, I spotted a theater featuring the film “Like Water for Chocolate,” based on the novel by Mexican writer Laura Esquivel. This gave me reason to ponder a topic very dear to me: What do women write about? Whereas the answer that comes to many may be the joys of love and domesticity (as seen in Esquivel’s novel about recipes with which to charm a man’s heart), the Argentine woman writer develops a radically different subject matter.

The fiction of these women is characterized by an indelible mark -- the experience of living through a decade of despotic military dictatorship. Their topics are centered around torture, dread, fear, shame and death, all facts of life for those who survived the bloody years between 1973 and 1983, known as the Dirty Wars.

The most extreme period of military repression began in 1976, when Gen. Jorge Videla seized control through a military coup.

Videla’s main target was the urban guerrillas and leftist organizations responsible for acts of terrorism. But of the estimated 6,000 to 20,000 desaparecidos or “disappeared” victims, relatively few were actually terrorists. This reign of terror spared no one whose ideology was not in line with the political right. Students, intellectuals, artists and journalists were particularly suspect and persecuted to the point of torture and death.

On Oct. 30, 1983, the Argentine military, humiliated by the defeat of the Malvinas (Falkland Islands to the British), was further humiliated by the free election of Paul Alfonsín as Argentina’s president. Given the passage of this decade of democracy, it is fitting to take stock of the significance of these events as they are engraved in the literature of Argentine women writers.

Why women? Because they are the ones who broke the canons of the traditional expectations of their gender to burst forth with a plethora of social, political, economic, ideological and cultural literary productions.

Let’s take the case of Elvira Orphee, author of “La Ultima Conquista de el Angel” (“The Last Conquest of the Angel”). This collection of stories describes a series of torture scenes orchestrated by a well-known torture master called the Angel of Death. Orphee spares little in her realistic depiction of the process. Her fictions re-create the curious relationships that evolve between the torturers and their subjects as they delve into a realm of reality that many of us prefer to ignore.

Whereas Orphee chose to stay in Argentina, many writers had no choice but to leave in self-exile. Such was the case of Cristina Siscar, whose husband and sister were “disappeared.” She was forced to leave her son behind as she fled to France. Siscar’s narratives explore the relationships between past and present and show that memory is often an open wound.

Similarly, Tununa Mercado took exile in Mexico and produced a touching series of narratives on the emotional and psychological dilemmas of people in exile.

On my last day in Buenos Aires, after long hours in conversation with writers and scholars, I strolled the streets once more, with an ambivalent feeling of both relief and concern.

My relief emerged with the realization that one could now speak out freely, and the literary and cultural life of the country was again thriving.

My concern was due to the fact that often in my discussions I had encountered the disturbing attitude that the Dirty Wars were done and over with, that the repression was horrible, but now it was in the past, and it was the time to forget and go on.

This view was particularly noticeable among the newest generation of writers, those too young to remember. They accuse their predecessors, shaped in the ’60s and matured during the military regime, of an excessive penchant for ideology and politics.

Ten years of democracy may have offered some time for Argentina to begin its healing process, but a decade is only a brief moment in the history of a country that has distinguished itself as being paradoxically progressive and repressive.

Author Luisa Valenzuela has referred to Argentina as a country of poets and cannibals because, she explains, every so often when the cannibals get hold of power they silence and kill the poets.

When 10 years of democracy have become 100 years of freedom from repression, only then can we say that the legacy of the cannibals may be on its way to extinction. ■

Dr. Gwendolyn Diaz received her elementary and secondary school education in Argentina. She holds a B.A. from Baylor University and M.A. and Ph.D. degrees from the University of Texas at Austin. This article first appeared in the Chicago Tribune and several other newspapers nationwide.

Distinguished Alumni Awards

This year's awards were presented at an Oct. 12 banquet to the Rev. James A. Young, S.M. (B.A. '36), president of St. Mary's from 1973 to 1981; James C. Laflin (B.Sc., J.D. '39), consultant to the city manager of Clayton, Mo.; and Charles E. Ebrom (B.B.A. '52, J.D. '63), executive vice president of administration and accounting, H.B. Zachry Co.

President Emeritus Young is a former provincial superior of St. Louis Province of the Society of Mary and a past chairman of St. Mary's board of trustees. He has been a Marianist for 61 years and now serves in Fort Worth as associate pastor and chaplain for the Sisters of St. Mary Namur.

Laflin's long career has included appointments as an FBI special agent, vice president of Southern Comfort Corp., president of the St. Louis County Municipal League, mayor of Clayton, Mo. and president of the St. Louis Archdiocesan Development Council.

Ebrom has served as an accounting instructor at St. Mary's, as a member of the school's board of trustees and as vice president and president of the St. Mary's Alumni Association. In 1980 he received the university's George Kohnen Business Leadership Award.

Where Alums Live

It's probably no surprise that statistics compiled in July 1994 show the largest number of St. Mary's alums live in San Antonio — almost 12,000; and in Texas, 19,167. California comes next with 462 alums; then Missouri, with 444; Virginia, 253; Illinois, 253; and New York, 218. States with the fewest alums are Maine and Rhode Island, each with 6.

St. Mary's alums live in all 50 states and in the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, Canada, Mexico and many other foreign countries.

St. Mary's Standing

The U.S. News & World Report magazine's annual "Best Values" listing for American universities in 1994 ranks St. Mary's fifth in the West for best sticker price and fifth for most efficient (the survey ranks the dollars institutions spend per student). The magazine also lists St. Mary's as No. 14 in the West in its annual "America's Best Colleges" issue. Criteria for selection include student-teacher ratio, reputation, financial resources, graduation rate and alumni satisfaction.

For the second consecutive year, Money magazine ranked St. Mary's in the top 100 "Best Buys" colleges and No. 1 in the top 100 schools for percentage of minority students enrolled.

New Optics Lab

The National Science Foundation awarded St. Mary's a matching grant of $49,206, of which NationsBank contributed the matching $24,603 called for.

The money is to furnish the physics optics laboratory with materials such as equipment that measures the wavelength of light, optics laser kits, light intensity meters, computers, a special video camera, a motor controller and software for an X-ray unit.

Alumni Association Check

Paul K. Biever (B.A. '63), 1993-1994 president of the St. Mary's Alumni Association, presents a check for $500,000 to St. Mary's president, the Rev. John Moder, S.M.

The largest contribution to date from the association, the money will provide scholarships for more than 50 deserving St. Mary's students.

The money was raised from the ever-popular Fiesta Oyster Bake and other association events, and from contributions from alumni chapters in Austin, Dallas/Fort Worth, Houston, Laredo, St. Louis, Washington, D.C., and the Athletic Booster Club.

Learning Foreign Languages

The Houston Endowment Inc. has awarded St. Mary's $100,000 for a new foreign language laboratory in which students can simultaneously look, listen and speak by means of interactive video-audio equipment. The new electronic facility greatly accelerates students' practice of correct expression and pronunciation.

Fall Enrollment

Enrollment for fall 1994 totals 4,166, of which 2,258 are women and 1,908 are men. Undergraduates number 2,605. Graduates, including students in the Ph.D. program, number 797, and law students, 764.

Thoughts from the Past President

OF THE ST. MARY'S UNIVERSITY ALUMNI ASSOCIATION

by Paul Biever (B.A. '63)

How can we reconnect with alumni who have lost their lovin' feeling for St. Mary's or who never had it in the first place?

The best way to find out is to talk to alumni and ask for their ideas about how to get them interested in supporting St. Mary's.

This past year we did just that through a questionnaire sent to 5,000 alumni and also by "going on the road" to visit with them in various parts of the country.

It became apparent that alumni want to be involved in the current efforts of the university but are not sure how to do so.

Because most of us respond positively to what interests us most, it is the responsibility of the association to offer alumni a variety of programs that will attract a broad representation and large numbers of participants.

It will be up to the Alumni Association board of directors and staff, therefore, to select, organize, promote and energize activities that will benefit both the participant and the university. There are some programs that have stood the test of time and show promise for alumni involvement. They include using special credit cards, alumni travel programs, purchasing university-imprinted merchandise, mentoring programs, receiving the AlumNotes newsletter and Gold & Blue magazine, watching athletic events, making gifts to the university and participating in continuing education.

We have a high level of alumni involvement in our Fiesta Oyster Bake, but it is my hope that interest can also be sparked by other special events with strong themes. There also appears to be a need to develop a formal networking service to help students and alums with job-hunting and related career services.

During the coming year, we will continue to meet with existing chapters, help new chapters form, and meet with smaller groups of alumni in areas where the numbers are not yet large enough to support a chapter. Our focus will be to meet with alumni and potential students and their families. ■

St. Mary's University

The President's Annual Report

1993-94

by Rev. John Moder, S.M., Ph.D.

Accreditation Activities

St. Mary's University had another good year. As I look back over the year, I am reminded that many in the St. Mary's community were busy preparing for and following up on the February visit of a team from the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools, our regional accrediting body. The law school was also busy with a regular reaccreditation visit from the American Bar Association and the American Association of Law Schools. The School of Business and Administration also had accreditation preparations under way, formulating the plan for moving toward accreditation by the American Association of Colleges and Schools of Business. So this year has involved a lot of measuring and measuring up to the high standards required for university and professional education. And we seem to be coming through quite well.

Extending Education

Although the year was not remarkable for dramatic changes, it has been a busy year, with a flood of continuing good work and progress. Added to programs that send our students abroad to London, Mexico, Austria, and at home, to Washington, D.C., Hawaii and the University of Indiana, was a new program that saw five of our students last fall studying (and enjoying football) at the University of Notre Dame. This was the first step in an exchange program designed in part to encourage some of our students to think seriously about graduate education after St. Mary's. (The students reported that Notre Dame's classes were quite good, on a par with their experience at St. Mary's.)

Buildings

The year saw no brand-new buildings, but construction continued on a series of moves made possible by our new University Center.

The older part of Chambrade Hall—the tower two-story addition—was remodeled and replaced by a seamless five-story addition. During spring break, the departments of philosophy, history, public justice, English, counseling & human services, enrollment management, undergraduate admissions and evening studies moved into their new Chambrade quarters.

Early last fall we dedicated our 11th residence hall, a 90-bed facility named in honor of the late Brother Andrew Grenier, S.M.

The old power plant near the center of campus is currently undergoing changes to become a new Subway Sandwich Shop.

St. Louis Hall

St. Louis Hall, perhaps more familiarly known as the Administration Building, began its second century of service this year. We recognized this landmark's 100th anniversary with a ceremony on Sept. 3 that began with a carriage ride for some of the dignitaries of Cincinnati Avenue—much as in 1893, except that the road is now paved. This past semester, further renovation took place on the third floor of St. Louis Hall to provide a new classroom and offices for the psychology department. The busar's office on the garden level of the building was also renovated.

National Recognition

St. Mary's continues to garner recognition locally and nationally for our contributions to education and for the success of our students.

On Sept. 8, 1993, St. Mary's was honored by the Avenida Guadalupe Association with a community service award for "civic achievement and selfless commitment to the betterment of the Hispanic community of San Antonio's Westside."

Last fall, we also were one of only two undergraduate universities from across the nation to receive the Institutional Achievement Award from the National Science Foundation in recognition of outstanding performance in sciences education and training of minority students and faculty.

At the same time, Lennard Pérez, a senior computer engineering major at St. Mary's, was one of three students out of 249 nationwide to win an undergraduate award from NSF for his research paper.

Another of our students, Sarah Ponce, stepped into the national scene when she was elected chairwoman of the National Catholic Students Coalition.

Distinguished Alumni

The Hispanic Association this year honored three outstanding alumni as Distinguished Alumni: Mpe, Oren, Mike Olinario, who recently relinquished Duquesne U. Oren, Olinario and Olinario to San Antonio as commemoration of the Fifth Avenue—the award St. Mary's KOTC graduates to hold their posts, Edward D. Kelly, president of USAA

Real Estate Division, and past chairman of both the board of trustees of St. Mary's and the Greater Chamber of Commerce of San Antonio; and Dr. John R. Conrad, physicist at the University of Wisconsin in Madison.

In the spring, the School of Business and Administration honored San Antonio Mayor Nelson Wolff with the Brother George B. Kohnen Award, and Lt. Gen. (retired) William H. Schneider (the first of our Fifth Army commanders), with the Brother Paul Goelz Award.

Student Leaders

The St. Mary's Presidential Leadership Award was inaugurated this year for 14 outstanding senior students. You have already seen the picture of these now distinguished graduates gracing the cover of the summer issue of Gold & Blue.

And a St. Mary's student entrepreneur garnered attention not only from the local media but also in the Chronicle of Higher Education for his up-and-coming homemade salsa business.

Faculty

This year's faculty selected by the Alumni Association for Distinguished Faculty honors were Dr. Janet Belew Dizinno, psychology; Dr. Glenn Hughes, philosophy; Professor Arthur Hanna, computer science; Dr. Mary Harston, accounting; Dr. Bahman Rezaie, engineering; and Professor John Schmolesky, law.

The 21 new faculty who joined our growing staff last year included three visiting professors bringing special expertise to the law school. Dr. Thomas H. Guderjan, who joined the faculty last year, brought with him the Mayan Research Program of which he is the director. This year he led a team that discovered Mayan masks dating to 700 A.D. The Rev. William Ellos, S.J.,

St. Louis Hall began its second century of service this year. We recognized this landmark's 100th anniversary with a ceremony on Sept. 8 that began with a carriage ride for some of the dignitaries up Cincinnati Avenue . . .

Ph.D., joined the faculty as well, coming to us from Loyola University (Chicago), to become the university's first Miller Professor of Biomedical and Medical Ethics. Two new Emil C. E. Jurica Distinguished Professors added to the business faculty were Dr. Brian Toyne and Dr. Wesley Andrews, and Phyllis Siegel, founder and president of the Biomedical Development Corp., joined the business school as the Don Douglass Entrepreneur-in-Residence. Our faculty grows in number, qualifications and reputation, while continuing to develop St. Mary's tradition of excellence in teaching and commitment to our students.

Guest Speakers

A variety of speakers contributed to the intellectual ferment on campus. The Lin Great Speakers Series, around the theme of "One Earth, Many Worlds," was led off by economist and nationally syndicated columnist Dr. Thomas Sowell, followed by Kaylynn Sullivan Twotrees and later by Dr. Elizabeth Bowen.

The President's Peace Commission focused on themes of "Identity in the '90s: Individual, Family, and Community" in the fall and "Sources of Conflict—Visions of Peace" in the spring. Gen. H. T. Johnson (retired), vice chairman of USAA and president of USAA Capital Corp., delivered the La Quinta Inns Business Lecture to kick off Business Week (which included a host of local business leaders as "Professors for a Day").

Other speakers during the year included former Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton and historian and international lecturer Dr. Erik Ritter von Kuehnelt-Leddihn.

School of Law

The School of Law continues to build on recent successes. The number of student applications has doubled in the past five years, the qualifications of entering students continue to improve, and the number of minority students has increased. St. Mary's law school now has the highest percentage of Mexican-American students of any private law school in the country.

A new Criminal Justice Clinic, funded by a grant from the U.S. Department of Education, was launched to offer criminal defense services to indigents in San Antonio and Bexar County. The school was instrumental in bringing into being the newly formed Texas-Mexico Bar Association, now housed in our law school.

A second Joint Venture program was initiated with the Universidad de Monterrey to train practicing U.S. and Mexican attorneys in each country's legal system.

A new Institute on Human Rights Law sponsored a study tour in May to El Salvador, drawing on the expertise of, among others, Piper Professor Larry Hufford, new last year to the St. Mary's political science department.

Fund Raising

Our university fund-raising efforts also continue to grow. We topped a $5 million total last year, led by a $1.87 million bequest from the estate of Alice Briggs, sister of the late Brothers Gerry and Ray and Father Alfred Schnepf.

The department of biological sciences received an important and prestigious grant of $650,000 from the Howard Hughes Medical Institute. The Alumni Association last year surpassed itself with a $450,000 contribution to the Alumni Scholarship Endowment Fund, which currently helps more than 50 Alumni Scholars to attend St. Mary's.

Not last and not least, a gift from PacificCare of Texas of bicycles and other necessary equipment has given us the only campus police bicycle patrol in San Antonio.

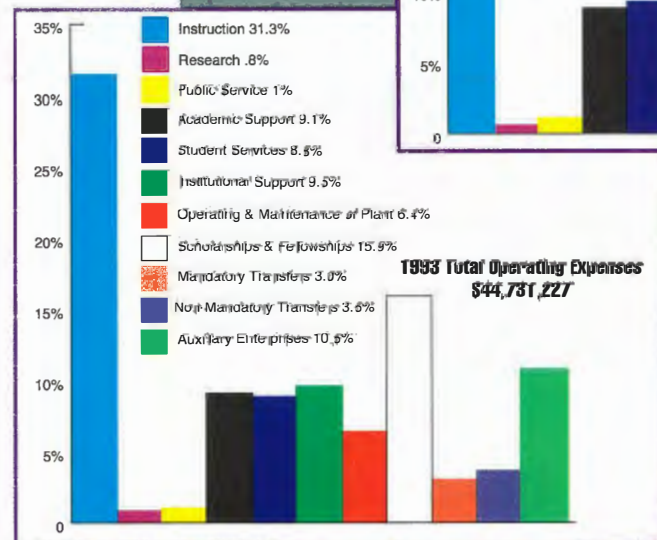

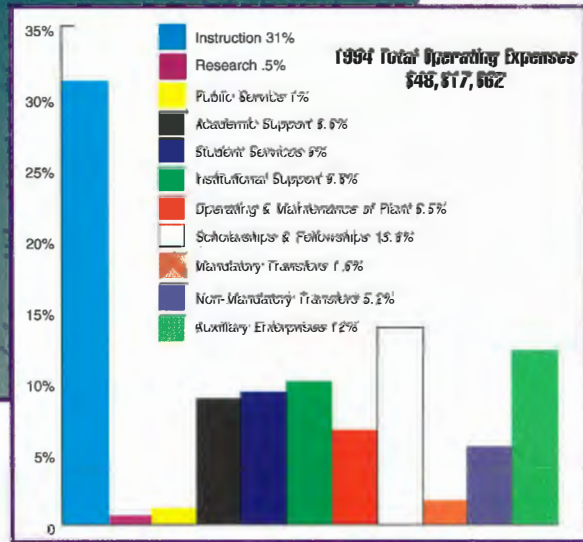

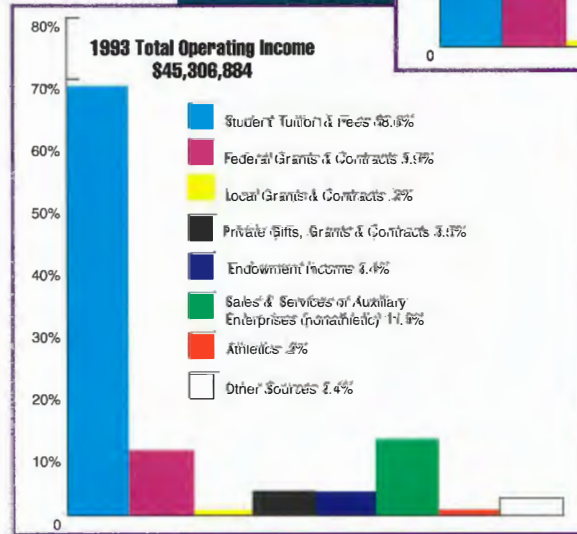

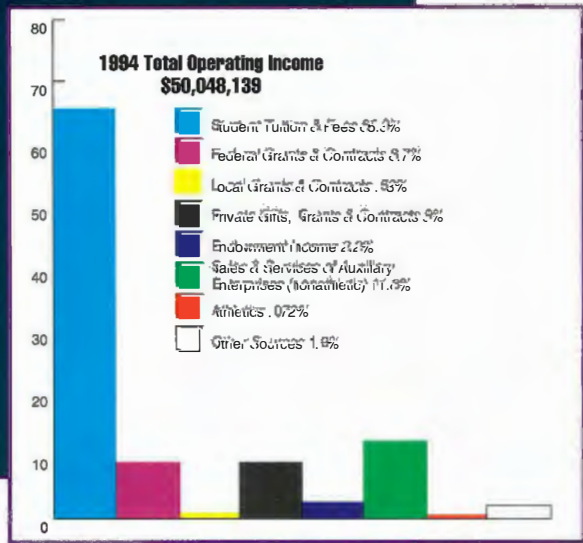

Athletics

And finally, varsity athletics kept up the strong St. Mary's tradition.

Senior April Fricke became the first All-American selection in volleyball in St. Mary's history. The softball team made its 10th consecutive trip to the NAIA World Series. And the Lady Rattlers basketball team won the Heart of Texas Conference regular season championship and set a school record with 22 wins. Not a bad year in sports!

Our 142nd Year

So all in all, it was a business-as-usual year for St. Mary's, continuing to provide the outstanding Marianist education for our 142nd year in San Antonio. Just the sort of year that leads to inclusion in U.S. News and World Report's list of best regional universities and Money magazine's list of the 100 best college values in the country. Your St. Mary's University! ■

The 1852 Society, established in 1993, recognizes those individuals who have made the university a beneficiary through a will, a charitable trust, a gift annuity or a life insurance policy. The Society of Mary founded St. Mary's College in 1852.

Father Blasen

Father Mike -- A Remembrance by the Rev. Louis Reile, S.M.

My earliest remembrance of Father Carl Blasen, S.M., is that a most jovial priest walked into my logic class and began to teach. His good humor never waned. If there is one trademark that stamped Father Charles (as some call him), it was his geniality, his all but constant affability.

Not a profound background was mine, nor the thirst to become a philosopher of note. But I was a most ready listener to the Marianist priest who was my teacher. For he welcomed all, the sincere seeker or the sometimes-studious pupil. Father was an educator in every sense of that term. His good humor, his simple erudition was inviting, infectious.

Born of German stock in Dubuque County, Iowa, on March 20, 1910, Carl Blasen pursued a quiet way, always knowing where he was going. His pursuit led him to enter the Marianist novitiate at Maryhurst, in Kirkwood, Missouri, August 13, 1926. He pronounced first vows as a Marianist August 15, 1927. He was ordained a priest in Fribourg, Switzerland, July 25, 1939.

Before and after his ordination, Brother Carl taught in Marianist schools at Victoria (Texas), St. Louis and Detroit to name only a few. He was busy pursuing his vocation as an educator devoted to the Immaculate Mother of God, whose name Carl evidently held in serene respect.

Greatly loved by his many students, Father Carl was also highly respected by his superiors, who constantly called him to positions of authority within the Marianist system of education. Not only was he chaplain in many of the schools where he taught, but he was also singled out to become principal at McBride and DeAndreis high Schools, as well as dean of students (vice president) here at St. Mary's University (1963-66). Father was again called to establish the second novitiate when it began in Galesville, Wisconsin. Seemingly there was no limit to father's talents, and especially his ebullient personality.

Kind father that he was to his students, he was approachable and available at any time for confessions. He was a ready and prepared homilist, giving retreats often to both students and fellow religious, not to mention the scores of other religious communities that invited him to lead retreat exercises. Particularly memorable is the fact that he very often preached the 21-day retreat to Marianists about to pronounce perpetual vows.

Father Carl, called "Mike" after his father, was evidently always on intimate terms with the Lord and Lady he served.

As a person lives, so he dies. So appropriate it was that on Tuesday morning, May 18, 1993, just as he, as celebrant, pronounced the opening words of the liturgy, genial, faithful Father Carl fell dead at the foot of God's altar. He was educating us to his last moment, and I count it one of my graces to have witnessed his glorious death. ■

A grateful former student who wishes to remain anonymous has honored the memory of the Rev. Carl M. Blasen, S.M., by endowing a $100,000 scholarship fund as a memorial in his name. Contributions to the scholarship memorial fund honoring Father Blasen may be sent to St. Mary's University Development, One Camino Santa Maria, San Antonio, TX 78228-8528.
